

ALL YOU ARE EVER BEING CONFRONTED WITH....IS LOVE.

It's a global dilemma—many of you are too intelligent for your own good. You have developed ways of interpreting the world that are highly complex. And so in order to address you—either in this manner or directly—I am called upon to help you get past your education back to the simplicity of being, which is that God is Love, which is that you are literally the presence of God. I am not saying that you are God. I'm saying that God is All There Is of You, all there is to you and therefore when you arrive at a place where you're willing to relinquish all of your highfalutin understanding and manage to be quiet within in an attentive listening mode then what God is being right where you are as Himself but it looks like you can have a chance to register with you so that you can begin to feel what you are, which is the presence of Love. And in feeling that begin to be the embodiment of love with each other and with everything, you see.

The idea that Love will change the world is as old as time because it's the answer to time. I mean by that that is what will undo time and uncover eternity now, here, as everyone's conscious experience. But when everyone is so sure about how everything works and all of its complexities and the genetics of things, and the cultural things and so on and that is the context in which one's search for truth occurs then that is where I respond and slowly and gently encourage each of you to have a different vantage point, one which is free of your definitions, one which is free of your confidences.

As much as you value your confidences they constitute a defense against enlightenment, they constitute a defense against learning of any kind, of revelation of any kind. "I am quite sure that this is a glass, and that it has water in it, and that water is made up of H₂O, hydrogen and oxygen, blah, blah, blah." Well that's an interesting description but what is its meaning? I'm not going to answer the question. But be curious about the things that you're so sure you know what they are. Wonder what, what is... is there a divine meaning here? And don't be so quick to say, "well, it's an illusion and therefore it has no meaning," anymore than you would say that this flower is an illusion and has no meaning. I will tell you it does not have the meaning that you are so sure it has. If there's anything there at all it's the presence of Love, and that means that you're being loved by it because love radiates and embraces and it includes.

And so it has meaning not just as something to observe and discern a beauty in it that it may be inspiring to you, it also means in a far more intimate way that at times when you feel unloved because of certain situations even the flowers are being Love that embraces you and you are able to feel it. And in moments of illumination many of you have felt that the substance of everything around you was Living Love that was loving you and you felt it, and you felt the Oneness without division, even though there was variety of shape and color and design and so on.

There is so much more here than anyone is experiencing, just in terms of what I'm going to call your world. There's also so much more just in terms of each other. And there was a point at which I said to my disciples, "If you have seen me you have seen the Father." Well if that doesn't imply that there's a lot more to each of us than you think there is, I don't know what can convey that to you. If you have seen me you have seen the Father. If you have seen each other you have seen the Father. But we're so sure that so-and-so is a hateful bitch, or so-and-so is a hard-nosed business man who will walk over anybody, and we have these definitions that we hold our fellow man to. But if you have seen them you have seen the Father.

That's why it's so valuable to not be so sure about everything. That's why it's valuable to have the shock of the realization that nothing you see means anything. Because in the willingness to see it as meaningless you're not so sure, you're not so confident, your concepts are not held too tightly and the opportunity to see more of the Father that is there in your brother and your sister and your mother and your daughter and your brother and so on, the more chance there is for the Father to be seen in them—the more chance there is to see the Father that is there where they are.

And as each one begins to stop defending himself or herself against seeing the Father there, by maintaining this strong opinion about who they are, the more rapidly the world is going to change—I'm going to put it this way, cause the world isn't going to change—the more rapidly you will begin to see the world clearly as it is, which is the infinite variety of form of substance that is Love expressed in infinite variety loving you, including you in the potential of an experience of Oneness that will cause you to no longer fear conflict and feel a need to defend yourself against potential conflict.
